

KO·AX

Press release

With a genuine blend of musical influences, unconventional original compositions and energetic live performances, the Austrian trio KO·AX explores the boundaries of Contemporary Jazz.

Starting from reduced compositions, the three musicians fuse Jazz and Improvisation with borrowings from Rock, Electronic Music, New Music, etc. to create a rousing mixture that knows how to unfold its effect – especially live. Minimal Music elements encounter synthesizer pads, twelve-tone rows converge with energetic grooves and catchy melodies meet the fragile sound world of Contemporary Jazz.

KO·AX has so far released the two albums „Loose Frames“ (Freifeld) and „immersion“ (Listen Closely) and has played numerous concerts at renowned venues (e.g. Porgy & Bess Vienna, Treibhaus Innsbruck, Osterfestival Tirol, Radiokulturhaus).

In mid-2025, the band will be presenting their new program (which will be also released on vinyl at the end of the year) and celebrating their tenth anniversary on stage – a milestone that will be used as an opportunity to process past, present and future events and developments in their compositions. In "wohin?", KO·AX bring personal highlights of the band members as well as commentaries on current sociopolitical events to life in their very own instrumental trio language.

Lukas Leitner – piano, synthesizer

Walter Singer – double bass

Lukas Laimer – drums

Reviews of previous releases

*„Music, which in a wonderful way has to be nothing and can be everything“
(translated from Johann Kneihls, Radio Ö1).*

*„Great postmodern playground (...): Intricate grooves unite with repetitive patterns, twelve-tone structures, poppy keyboard sounds as well as dissonant cluster interjections to form a surprisingly rich musical whole. (...) Together, the three musicians rethink the traditional form of the Piano Trio in a carefree way. Worth listening to!“
(translated from Andreas Felber, Radio Ö1)*

*„An album that goes for Lo-Fi and complex, enigmatic rhythms - and in this setting ignites ravishing creative explosions again and again“
(translated from Christoph Irrgeher, Wiener Zeitung)*

*„On its second album, the trio processes a whole variety of different influences in a Contemporary Jazz bracket: something from Electronic Popular Music, Rock, but also New Music or Minimal Music. [...] This is all done in an extremely concise manner; the level of craftsmanship is high. The result is consistently as if from a single mold, and Leitner, Singer and Laimer can definitely claim the status of originality for their trio.“
(translated from freiStil magazine).*

*„KO-AX paves its own way and artfully transfers the language of Contemporary Jazz into a stylistically expanded form“
(translated from Michael Ternai, Music Information Center Austria).*

*“...wonderfully inspired piano trio (inter)action...”
(translated from Christoph Cech, Anton Bruckner Private University Linz).*
